CHECK YOUR ENGLISH VOCABULARY FOR

LAW

by

Rawdon Wyatt

A & C Black • London
Introduction

This book has been written for anyone working or training to work in the legal profession, or for anyone whose job requires them to have a working knowledge of legal words and terms. The various exercises throughout the book focus on the key vocabulary that you might be expected to understand and use on a day-to-day basis.

You should not go through the exercises in this book mechanically. It is better to choose areas that you are unfamiliar with, or areas that you feel are of specific interest or importance to yourself.

Each exercise is accompanied by a full answer key at the back of the book. This key also gives you other information about particular vocabulary items (for example, words with similar meanings, alternative words and expressions, etc) that are not covered in the exercises themselves.

When you are doing the exercises, there are a few important points you should consider:

1. Many of the words, expressions and accompanying notes are based primarily on the English and Welsh legal system. However, there are also many ‘generic’ words which can be applied across the international legal spectrum, and would be recognised in other places such as the USA and Canada.

2. Not all of the vocabulary practised in this book is legal vocabulary per se (see page 45 to find out what this expression means), but would be used in a legal context (for example, at a trial or tribunal, or when producing a contract or negotiating business terms).

3. A lot of the words and expressions which have been presented here in a particular context (for example, words connected with a criminal law procedure) might also ‘cross over’ into other areas of law. A jury, for example, is usually employed at a criminal trial, but might also be used in some civil cases, such as libel.

It is very important to keep a record of new words and expressions that you learn. On page 64 of this book, you will find a vocabulary record sheet which you can photocopy as many times as you like and use to build up a ‘bank’ of useful words and expressions. It is accompanied on the following page by a sample sheet that shows you how to record a particular vocabulary item. Keep your record sheets in a file or folder and review them on a regular basis so that the words and expressions become an ‘active’ part of your legal vocabulary.

We recommend that you keep a good dictionary with you, and refer to it when necessary. Many of the words and expressions in this book (together with their definitions) can be found in the A & C Dictionary of Law. For general vocabulary reference, the Macmillan English Dictionary is also an excellent resource.

No vocabulary book can possibly contain all of the legal words and expressions that you are likely to come across or need, so it is important you acquire new vocabulary from other sources. On the next page you will find a short list of useful sources that were consulted during the writing of this book, and you should also read as much as possible from a variety of other sources, including journals, papers and case reports (many of which are available on the Internet).
The following websites were a useful reference source during the writing of this book, and are recommended if you want to develop your legal vocabulary further, or if you want to learn more about laws, legal systems, etc, especially those in the United Kingdom.

www.bench-marks.org (an excellent website if you want to know more about the underlying principles of corporate governance and responsibility)
Before you begin: Essential words

The words in this exercise are used a lot in the legal profession, and appear at various stages throughout this book, so it is important you understand what they mean before you do any of the other exercises. Match the definitions on the left with the words on the right. Note that (a) there are more words than definitions, and (b) many of the words on the right can have more than one meaning, but only one of those meanings is in the column on the left. Note that many of the words and accompanying expressions in this exercise (and in the following exercises on business law) are not exclusive to business law, but may also be applied to other legal and general areas.

| 1. Money claimed by someone as compensation for harm done. | appeal |

10. An attempt by a third party to make the two sides in an argument agree.
11. A document in which a company acknowledges it owes a debt and gives the company’s assets as security.
12. The closing of a company and the selling of its assets.
13. Money claimed by a claimant from a defendant because of harm or damage done, or money awarded by a court to a claimant as a result of harm suffered by the claimant (Clue: this word has already appeared elsewhere in this exercise).
14. The legal responsibility for paying someone for loss or damage incurred.
15. A failure to give proper care to something, especially a duty or responsibility, with the result that a person or property is harmed.
16. The good reputation of a business and its contacts with its customers (for example, the name of the product it sells or its popular appeal to customers).
17. A court order telling a person or a company to stop doing something, or telling them not to do it in the first place.

Use the word in the shaded vertical strip to complete this paragraph.

The company promised us that they would send us the goods by March 31st, but since then we have discovered that they knew they couldn't get them to us until the end of May. We lost a lot of money as a result, so we are going to sue them for _________.

Familiarise yourself with the words in this exercise by using them in some of your own sentences. Don’t forget to record any new words and expressions you learn (there is a vocabulary record sheet on page 64 which you can photocopy as many times as you like and use to build your own vocabulary 'bank').
Business law 3: Key verbs

Complete the crossword on page 8 by rearranging the jumbled letters in bold in the sentences below and writing the words and expressions in the appropriate space on the crossword grid. An explanation of each verb is in brackets at the end of each sentence. Be careful, as many of the words will need to change their form (for example, to the past simple or past perfect) to fit correctly in the sentence and into the crossword.

Assuming the company responds within the specified time limit, there will be a ____________. Later, there will be a main hearing where hopefully the judge will decide ____________.
Exercise 1:
Complete this text, which has been adapted from the A & C Black Dictionary of Law, with words or expressions from the box.

A contract can be defined as 'an ________ between two or more parties to create legal ________ between them'. Some contracts are made ' ________': in other words, they are ________ and sealed (stamped) by the parties involved. Most contracts are made ________ or in ________. The essential elements of a contract are: (a) that an ________ made by one party should be ________ by the other; (b) ________ (the price in money, goods or some other ________, paid by one party in exchange for another party agreeing to do something); (c) the ________ to create legal relations. The ________ of a contract may be ________ (clearly stated) or ________ (not clearly ________ in the contract, but generally understood). A ________ of contract by one party of their ________ entitles the other party to ________ for ________ or, in some cases, to seek specific performance. In such circumstances, the contract may be ________ (in other words, it becomes invalid).

Exercise 2:
There are many different kinds of contract for different situations. Look at the following paragraphs, and decide what kind of contract is being described or talked about.

1. I went into the supermarket and chose the items that I wanted. As soon as my basket was full, I headed for the checkout.

2. My cousin Bob said he was going to get rid of his computer and buy a new one. I said that I needed a computer and suggested I bought his old one. Anyway, we agreed on a price, I gave him a £50 deposit, and agreed to pay the balance in instalments over the next three months. I'm going round to collect the computer this evening.

3. The property is unfurnished, and the rent is £650 pcm, which has to be paid monthly in arrears. Electricity, gas and phone bills are extra. There's a communal garden and a communal parking area, for which I also have to pay a nominal maintenance fee. The landlord is responsible for any repairs to the property. I'm not allowed to sublet at any time. I've signed the lease for 18 months.

4. We’re opening our own branch in the town centre next week. The deal is fairly simple: we get the right to use the company’s name, their trademark, their trade names and products, wear their uniforms and use their stationery. They also provide our staff with all the necessary training, give us invaluable managerial assistance and provide advertising materials. In return, we have to meet specific requirements, such as quality of service, maintaining good customer relations, and following the company’s standard procedures. Oh, and buy all the products we sell from them, naturally.
5. The total amount you are borrowing is £9,000 at an APR of 6.6%. Repaid in monthly instalments over 3 years, this gives you a monthly repayment figure of £275.46, totalling £9,916.56. You have opted out of the repayment protection premium scheme. If you wish to make an early settlement, the figure above will be recalculated accordingly. As soon as you sign a form, your funds will be released into your bank account. Please note that penalties will be applied if you default on repayments.

6. This appointment is for a period of two years, following a 4-week probationary period. Your remuneration package includes an annual gross salary of £32,000. You are entitled to sick pay and 6 weeks annual leave after you have been with us for 3 months. Your hours of work are 9 to 5 Monday to Friday, although you may be asked to work overtime during busy periods. The company has its own medical and pension schemes which you may join.

7. The total cost is £2,870, which is payable in full before the goods can be despatched. Alternatively, we can arrange credit terms, which are interest-free for the first six months. All goods are covered by the manufacturer’s warranty, which is valid for one year. If you are not happy with your merchandise, it can be returned for an exchange or full refund (but please note that this is valid for 28 days only, and we will need to see your receipt or other proof of purchase).

8. A group 7M people carrier is £58 a day. This price includes unlimited mileage, fully comprehensive insurance, collision damage waiver and loss damage waiver. The company has drop-off points in most major cities, but will charge extra if you use a different one from that where you picked up the vehicle. A refuelling service charge will be applied if you do not replace the fuel you have used.

1. Several factory floor workers have been fired or had their wages reduced for refusing to stay and work late when needed.

2. Production manager Laurence Bailey broke his wrist when some unsecured panels fell on it. He is trying to get money out of the company for his injuries. ‘You’re not getting a penny out of this company,’ his boss tells him. ‘It’s your problem, not ours’

3. Andrew Kelly is thinking of starting a union for the workers at RJW Ltd. The Company Director warns him that if he does, he will regretfully have to ‘let him go’.

4. Manager Maureen Blake is always patting her male PA’s backside and telling him he has ‘a wonderful body’. He has complained several times, but nothing ever gets done about it.

5. Susie Roberts, a secretary for RJW Ltd, recently had a baby. She cannot afford a babysitter while she is at work, so the baby stays with her in the office.

6. RJW Ltd have their main office on the edge of an economically-deprived area predominantly inhabited by people of West Indian origin. The company prefers to hire white, male, middle class employees.

7. RJW Ltd has regular, compulsory medical check-ups for its employees. The company nurse believes that one of the workers, Charlie Higson, drinks a lot when off duty. She reports this to Charlie’s manager, who then dismisses him.

8. Ron Smith and Emma Addams are sales executives for RJW Ltd. They both have the same qualifications and the same experience. Mr Smith receives £40,000 a year and Mrs Addams receives £34,000 a year.

9. Office assistant Tony White thinks his boss treats him badly. He wants to complain, but has no idea how to go about doing so. Nobody else seems to know what he should do either.

10. Factory-floor workers at RJW Ltd find it difficult to make ends meet. The cost of living is rising all the time, and the money they receive has not kept up with the rate of inflation.

11. Canteen assistant Anne Watkins oversleeps one morning and is two hours late for work. She has worked for RJW Ltd for 6 months and has never been late before. The canteen manager sacks her the moment she arrives.

12. Ellie McKenzie, a machine operator for RJW Ltd, works 12 hours a day with only 20 minutes for lunch.

13. Six months ago the company advanced one of its employees some money. When the employee became ill and was unable to pay back the money, the company insisted on using his children to work to pay off his debt.

14. Delivery driver Michael Blair is exhausted: he hasn’t had a holiday for two years. The company says it cannot afford to give him the time off work.

15. Production assistant Richard Mann slipped on some oil on the factory floor, fell headlong through a glass panel, caught his arm in some unguarded machinery and was electrocuted by some exposed electrical wires.

16. Factory-floor workers have been told that a new quota system has been put in place: anyone who does not satisfy this quota will have their salaries reduced.

17. Accountant Audrey Jensen is delighted because she’s just discovered she’s going to have a baby. Her boss is not so happy: ‘Sorry Audrey, you’re fired,’ he says.

Financial and ethical integrity

Look at paragraphs 1 – 9 in the boxes, and do the task that accompanies each one.

Paragraph 1:

Find words in the paragraph below that mean:

1. To make something weaker or less effective
2. People who have invested in and own part of a business, or people who have a personal interest in how something happens
3. Open and honest about its actions
4. People who own shares in a company
5. Business dealings and other actions
6. To ask someone for something (in this case, for an immoral or unethical purpose)
7. Something which encourages
8. Money offered corruptly to someone to get him to do something to help you
9. Honesty / moral principles

A company should not offer, solicit or accept bribes or any other form of financial incentive that could undermine its integrity, and for the sake of its shareholders and other stakeholders it should be transparent in all its accounting and financial transactions.

Paragraph 2:

This paragraph contains 7 wrong word forms (for example, a verb has been used instead of a noun, a singular form has been used when a plural form is necessary, etc). Identify and correct these words.

A company should be social responsible in its investing, and exercise diligent to ensure that such investments do not have an adversity affect on human needs and right. It should be prepared to disclosure any information regarding its investments when asked to do so.

Paragraph 3:

Rearrange the letters in bold to make words.

If a company pssstecu that it is being used for minrilac or other illegal activities, either from within the company or from the outside, it should report its nsiosupci to the relevant rathouseiti and put in place rrserabi to ensure that it does not happen again.

Paragraph 4:

Complete the paragraph with words or expressions from the first box.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>disadvantaged</th>
<th>ensure</th>
<th>equitable</th>
<th>interest rates</th>
<th>policies</th>
<th>predatory</th>
<th>profit margins</th>

A company that lends money should avoid _______ practices such as imposing very high _______ and short _______ periods, especially in situations where people are particularly financially _______, and it should _______ that its lending _______ are _______, even if this means that they have to reduce their _______.

Paragraph 5:
This paragraph contains 10 spelling mistakes. Identify and correct each one.

A company should not infrange, copy or otherwise use without permission or acknowledgement a copyright, a patient, a trademark (registred or otherwise) or anything else that could be construed as creative or intelectual property for financial gain.

Paragraph 6:
Read this paragraph, then do the task that follows it.

A company should respect the rights of the individual to privacy and freedom from harassment, intimidation and any other act which could be viewed by the individual as an invasion of their privacy. In addition to maintaining good public relations with its customers, suppliers, and other people it works with, a company should also maintain good relations with its neighbours and people who live in and around its area of operations.

What is:
- The adjective form of the noun privacy?
- The verb form of the noun harassment?
- The adjective form of the noun intimidation?
- The verb form of the noun invasion?
- The noun form of the verb maintaining?
- The verb form of the noun / adjective public?
- The adjective form of the noun neighbours?

Paragraph 7:
Using your own words and ideas, explain the words and expressions in bold in this paragraph.

As part of its corporate governance policy, a company should have clearly defined codes of conduct, codes of best practice and other guidelines for its directors and employees to follow and uphold.

Paragraphs 8 and 9:
Which words or expressions in paragraphs 8 and 9 below are closest in meaning to:
1. disobeying  2. to end or finish  3. worries (noun)  4. to make something correct
5. to obey  6. to punish  7. negative effects or results  8. duties

A company should not penalise any employee for questioning its policies and its financial or ethical integrity, and employees should be aware that if they do so, there will be no repercussions. An employee should not have to comply with any rules that it feels undermine his / her, and the company’s, integrity.

The responsibilities in paragraphs 1 - 8 above should apply not only to the main company, but also to any of its subsidiaries, joint venture partners, suppliers, licensees, franchisees or investors. If a company believes that any of these are acting in an unethical way, or otherwise violating recognised ethical standards, it should address its concerns to the party involved and attempt to redress the situation. If necessary, the company should terminate its business relationships with the party or parties concerned.

Crime 2: Name the offence

Look at these situations, then decide which crime has been, or is being, committed in each case. These crimes can all be found in Crime 1 on page 29, but try to do this exercise first without referring back. In some cases, more than one option is possible. (Note that you do not need to use all of the crimes from page 29).

1. TV Newsreader: Police believe the fire was started deliberately at around 2 o’clock this morning when burning paper was pushed through the letterbox. They are appealing for witnesses to the event.

2. Crown Prosecutor: Tell us in your own words exactly what happened.
   Witness: We were in the bar when a man walked up to the victim, pointed a gun at his head and said ‘You’re a dead man.’ Then he pulled the trigger three times.

3. Police constable: You were going in excess of 60, and this is a 30 zone.
   Man in car: I think you’re mistaken, constable. I was well within the speed limit.

4. Woman: When I got home, I discovered that my back door had been broken open.
   Police officer: Had anything been stolen?
   Woman: Yes, my new laptop, £200 in cash and my pet parrot.

5. Police officer: I’m sorry sir, but I have to report your actions to the proper authorities.
   Man: Look, officer, here’s £50. Let’s just pretend this didn’t happen, eh?

6. Extract from a newspaper article: The two men were arrested and detained after police checks revealed that they had been distributing pornographic material over the Internet.

7. Interviewing detective: All right, Dagsy. We know you didn’t do the Cornmarket Street bank job yourself, but we know that you were involved somehow.
   Police suspect: I was just driving the car Mr Regan, honest. And I didn’t know what the others were up to until they came back with bags of cash.

8. TV newsreader: The car bomb went off in a busy marketplace, injuring several shoppers.

9. Radio newsreader: The police raided a house in New Street this morning and recovered 250 illegal copies of the latest Harry Potter film, along with professional film copying equipment.

10. Man reading newspaper: I don’t believe it. The Foreign Minister has been caught giving government secrets to another country!

11. Political agitator: Now is the time to rise up and overthrow the running dogs that call themselves our government. Death to the Prime Minister and his cronies! Death to the Royal Family! Death to the system that bleeds us dry and abandons us!
    Unwashed anarchist hordes: Hooray!

12. Shop assistant: I can’t accept this £20 note, madam. It’s a fake.
    Customer: What? You mean it’s counterfeit?
    Shop assistant: I’m afraid so. Do you have any other means of payment?

13. Extract from a newspaper article: The investigation into the rail accident confirmed that it occurred because the rail company had failed to maintain the tracks properly over a five-year period. Eight people died when the train left the tracks and hit an embankment.
14. Police officer: Take your time and tell me what happened, dear.
Pensioner: The man who came to my door said he had come to read the electric meter, so I let him in. I went to the kitchen to make him a cup of tea. When I returned he had gone, and so had my television.

15. TV newsreader: A journalist working in the city disappeared this morning. Police later received a note from a militant faction claiming that they had taken him and were holding him hostage.

16. Woman: The graffiti around here is getting really bad. Last week somebody wrote 'Chelsea are rubbish' on our garden wall.
Man: That's not good. It should say 'Chelsea are complete rubbish'.

17. Man: Look at this note, Cheri. It arrived in the post today. It says 'Leave £10,000 in cash in the bin by the bus stop, or I'll tell everyone your dirty secret'.
Woman: Don't worry about it, Tony. It's probably another little joke from him next door.

18. Prosecuting lawyer: Tell us again what happened on the night of the incident, Mr Williams. And let me remind you that you are still under oath.
Defendant: Like I told you, I was at home asleep, so I have no idea what happened.
Prosecuting lawyer: Don't lie, Mr Williams. We have video evidence that you were in the nightclub until 3am. And you were seen by several witnesses.

19. Defendant: I don't recognise this court. This trial shouldn't be taking place.
Judge: Sit down, Mr Dowling. You are out of order.
Defendant: Oh shut up, you silly old woman. Go back home and do some washing up or something.

20. Accountant: We've audited these accounts very carefully, and they just don't add up.
Office manager: What exactly are you saying?
Accountant: I'm saying that someone in your office has been secretly helping themselves to company money.

21. TV presenter: Jimmy Bond, a former government intelligence agent, has just published a book about the Intelligence Service called 'Lifting the Lid'. In it, he gives us a revealing insight into the life of a secret agent. The government have strongly condemned the book, claiming it contains classified information that should not be in the public domain.

22. Magistrate: Constable, could you explain what happened?
Police constable: I was proceeding down Newland Street at approximately 8 o'clock last night when I heard a lot of shouting coming from The Newlands Inn public house. On entering, I saw the accused in a state of undress and dancing on a table.
Magistrate: You mean he was naked?
Police constable: Yes. As the day he was born.

23. Radio newsreader: The judge in the trial of notorious gangster Joe 'Pinko' Pallino adjourned the court today after it was revealed that several members of the jury had been offered bribes and other incentives to pass a verdict of 'not guilty' on Mr Pallino.

24. TV presenter: A bank account was opened in a false name in the Bahamas, and the cash deposited there. The funds were then sent by telegraphic transfer to another account in Switzerland, and the Bahamas account was closed. It was at this stage that the Metropolitan Police called in Interpol.
Crime 3: Criminal procedure (part 1)

Imagine that a crime has taken place. Look at sentences 1 – 15 (which explain what happens next) and rearrange the letters in bold to make words and expressions. The first letter of each word / expression is in the correct place. Note that one word is used twice, but with a different meaning.

1. Once the crime has been cedmitomt, it is rotpeder to the police by the vitmic.

2. The police arrive at the sneec of the crime to itsanetiveg what has happened.

3. They look for important cesul and other ecdnevie (for example, fingerprints or a genetic profile) that will help them to identify the crupitl.

4. In some cases, they will also try to establish if the mudso odiranpe (a Latin expression which describes the way in which the crime was carried out) matches other crimes in the area.

5. If they have a stupsce who doesn’t have a good iblia, they will then arepnhedp him*.

6. When he is artsrede, the police will conutia him (in other words, they warn him that anything he says might be used later in court).

7. He is then taken to the police station, where he is iewervinted by the iigengstatinv oerfsicf.

8. He is allowed to have a sitocirol present if he wants.

9. If he wants lage ratprstionneee at this stage, but cannot afford it, the police must provide it.

10. If, at the end of the interview, the police believe that they have the right man, they ceragh him with the crime.

11. A stemnttae is prepared, which is signed by all parties present.

12. The ascedcu is then either redseale on bali (in other words, he is allowed to leave the police station and go home in exchange for a financial ‘deposit’, on condition that he promises to appear in court when required: if he doesn’t appear in court, he will lose this deposit and a twrraan will be issued for his arrest), or he is rdaeddmn in cysodut and locked in a cell to prevent him from running away.

13. More questioning will probably follow: the police need as much pofor as possible (anything that is assdblimie in court will help them to get a cinonctivo), and they may also be interested in any apcosmiccel who may have helped their man.

14. The police will also want to talk to any wisestsen who were present when the crime took place.

15. The next day, the man appears before a metgiasrat in a metgiasrats court. If the police present their csea properly and have followed all the correct procedures and protocols, he will then be cedmitomt for tirlna at a Conwr Court.

* or her, of course!
Crime 4: Criminal procedure (part 2)

Before you do this exercise, see Crime 3 on the previous page.

Here are the various stages of a criminal trial. Read through them, and try to remember as much information as possible. Then cover this page, and try to complete the same sentences on the next page with the information that has been removed.

When the accused knows that he is going to stand trial, he asks a solicitor to prepare his case.

The information collected is then given to a barrister who will defend him in court.

In a criminal case, the police will have their own barrister, who is known as the Crown Prosecutor.

These two barristers are referred to throughout the trial as counsel for the defence and counsel for the prosecution.

Before the trial begins, the counsels review their evidence and decide how to present their case.

Members of the jury, when required, are selected and briefed on their duties. A date for the trial is arranged.

At the beginning of the trial, the judge asks the defendant how he pleads: 'guilty' or 'not guilty'.

Both counsels then address the jury with a summary of what they believe is true, and explain what the jury will hear at the trial.

The counsel for the prosecution then calls and questions witnesses. The counsel for the defence can cross-examine these people. The defendant will also be questioned by both counsels.

At the end of the trial, the counsels summarise the facts as they see them, and the jury then retires to deliberate in private.

When the jury has reached its verdict, it returns to the court and the foreman of the jury delivers the verdict to the court.

If the defendant is found to be 'not guilty', he is acquitted.

However, if the jury's verdict is 'guilty', the defendant is convicted and sentenced by the judge.

The defendant may have to serve a custodial sentence (in other words go to prison), he may be given a suspended sentence, or he may be fined (or a combination of two of these).

If the defendant is not happy with the decision of the court, he is free to appeal to a higher court. The highest courts for appellants in England and Wales are the House of Lords and the Court of Justice of the European Communities (also called the European Court of Justice, or ECJ for short).
When you are doing this exercise, try not to refer back to the previous page until you have completed it.

When the ________ knows that he is going to stand trial, he asks a ________ to prepare his ________.

If the defendant is not happy with the decision of the court, he is free to ________ to a higher court. The highest courts for ________ in England and Wales are the House of ________ and the Court of Justice of the European Communities (also called the European Court of Justice, or ________ for short).
Commercial and business disputes (= arguments / disagreements between two or more parties) do not necessarily have to be settled in an imposed court case. Mediation – an attempt by a third party to make two sides in an argument agree – is often quicker, cheaper, more effective and less stressful for the parties involved.

Complete the first part of each word in bold in sentences 1 – 18 with the second part in the box.

1. Mediation is one form of what is known as alter dispute resolution (ADR for short).
2. Mediation is generally preferable to liti because it is normally quicker and cheaper.
3. Mediation is vol, but requires the con of all the parties involved before it can go ahead.
4. Mediation is carried out by a neutral, imp third party called a med.
5. This third party is also sometimes known as a facil.
6. He / she spends time with all the parties involved in jo ses and also in private meetings (known as 'cau').
7. Any information that the parties provide is confi and cannot be dis to the other parties.
8. He / she attempts to solve problems and find resol that are prac and bene to everyone.
9. Unlike a formal court case, nego are in private.
10. Resolutions and sett are based on com and on mut agreement and acceptance.
11. If no agreement is reached, the parties involved will not be legally bo by anything that has been discussed.
12. A mediation process is said to be 'without pre', which means that anything that was said during the mediation cannot be used if there is no agreement and the case has to go to court.
13. If an agreement is reached and the parties sign a written agreement, this agreement becomes bin, and the parties are obliged to hon it. This can then be enforced contr if necessary.
14. Another form of ADR is arbi.
15. This will involve all parties in the dispute appearing before a tri.
16. An arbi is usually an expert in a particular field, and so this form of dispute resolution may be preferable in disputes where specialist knowledge is required.
17. However, unlike mediation, this form of resolution involves an adjusti, which will probably benefit one side in the dispute more than the other(s).
18. This form of dispute resolution is also less private than mediation (each party is aware of what the other party is saying about it), and information may end up in the pub dom.
Employment and human resources

Read these extracts, then find words or expressions in them to match the definitions on the next page. The words / expressions are in the same order as the definitions.

A company manager is talking to a newspaper about his company structure:
The company has over 200 employees on its payroll. Some are employed part-time mornings only, Monday to Friday, and some are employed full-time (Monday to Friday 9 to 5). Everyone is given a contract before they start work outlining their duties and responsibilities, and what they can expect from the company in return. Every employee receives at least the minimum wage. We pride ourselves on being an equal-opportunities employer.

From an Internet page on employees' rights:
If an employer no longer needs an employee (because, for example, the company is closing down or moving) and has to dismiss him, then the employee is entitled to receive redundancy pay. Many companies will try to provide employees with suitable alternative employment.

From a factory-floor notice on employers' liability and employees' responsibilities:
Health and safety regulations are very important and must be followed at all times. The company believes that all employees should have maximum protection against industrial accidents. The company will not be held liable for injuries and disabilities sustained as a result of poor working practices by employees, and will accept no liability for these in the event of any claims for compensation. The company has a scale of fixed monetary awards to compensate those employees who are affected by accidents caused as a result of company negligence. In the event of an employee's death, any awards due will be passed on to the employee's dependants.

From a website explaining working time regulations:
An employee cannot be compelled to work for more than 48 hours a week over a 17-week period. If an employer makes him work more than this time, the employee can complain to an employment tribunal. Employees must also be allowed to take 24 hours off work every 7 days, and take a minimum 20-minute break if their working day exceeds 6 hours. They must also be allowed a rest period of 11 consecutive hours in every 24 hours. All employees are entitled to paid annual leave, regardless of how long they have worked for a company.

From a leaflet explaining women's rights at work:
Women cannot be dismissed on the grounds of pregnancy or childbirth. They are entitled to up to 26 weeks maternity leave, and to receive maternity pay during this period. If a woman has completed 26 weeks of continuous service with her employer by the beginning of the 14th week before the expected birth of her child, she can take another 26 weeks: this is usually unpaid, but some companies will make contributions. She must give her employer at least 28 days' notice of the date on which she intends to begin her leave. Women are also allowed to take reasonable time off work before the child is born for antenatal care. If a company has to suspend a woman on the grounds of maternity (because, for example, the work she is doing might endanger the unborn child), it must offer her alternative employment or continue to pay her normal salary.
(Note that fathers are entitled to two weeks' paid paternity leave. Both parents can also take another 13 weeks' unpaid parental leave).

A union leader is addressing some new employees:
Discrimination and harassment of any kind (sexual, racial, etc) will not be tolerated in this company, and are sackable offences, as are bullying and intimidation. If any employee has a genuine grievance in regard to these, or other, problems, you should talk to me or talk directly to your line manager. We will take such allegations very seriously, and will talk you through the grievance procedure so that you know the options that are open to you.

44. The steps an employee goes through if he / she has a complaint.
European courts, institutions, etc

Each of the sections on Europe below contain either spelling mistakes, wrong words, or wrong word forms. Identify and correct these words in each case.

The European Union (EU)
(This section contains 6 mistakes)
This is a group of European notions that form a single economical community and have agreed on socialist and political cooperation. There are currently 25 member states. The Union has a Parliament and a main execution body called the European Commission (which is made up of members nominated by each member state).

The Council of Europe
(This section contains 5 mistakes)
This is one of the four bodies which form the basis of the European Union. The Council does not have fixed members, but the member states are each represented by the relevant government minister. The Council is headed by a President, and the Presidency rotates among the member states in alphabetical order, each serving a six-month period. This means that in effect each member can control the agenda of the Council, and therefore that of the European Union during their six-month period, and can try to get as many of its proposals put into legislative as it can.

The European Convention on Human Rights
(This section contains 8 mistakes)
This is a convention signed by all members of the Council of Europe covering the rights and fundamentally freedoms of all its citizens, and aims to prevent violent and breaches of human rights. The convention recognises property rights, the right of citizens to privacy, the due progress of law and the principal of legal review or appeal. The key provisions are now incorporated by the Human Rights Act of 1998, which came into force in the United Kingdom in October 2000.

The European Court of Human Rights
(This section contains 9 mistakes)
This is a court that considers the rights of citizens of states which are parts to the European Convention for the protection of human rights, and has jurisprudence over cases that cannot be settled by the European Commission of Human Rights (see below). It protects many basic rights, including the right to life, freedom from fear, freedom from torture, freedom of speaking, freedom of religion worship, freedom of assemblage and association, etc (in fact, most of the articles in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, on which the European Convention is based: see the section on Human Rights on pages 44 – 48). Its formal name is the European Court for the Protection of Human Rights.
The European Commission of Human Rights
(This section contains 5 mistakes)
This is a body which investigates any breaches and abuses of the European Convention on Human Rights. It attempts to end grievances, especially if they contravene the articles detailed in the European Convention, and to help aggrieved parties reach a settlement without recourse to the European Court of Human Rights (see above).

The European Court of Justice (the ECJ)
(This section contains 10 mistakes)
This is a court set up to see that the principles of law as laid out in the Treaty of Rome are observed and applied correctly in the European Union, and has jurisdiction over issues of European Law. Its full name is the Court of Justice of the European Communities. The Court is responsible for settling disputes relating to European Union law, and also acting as a last Court of Appeal against judgements in individual member states.

Court judges in the ECJ are appointed by the governments of the member states for a period of six years. These judges come from all the member states, and bring with them the legality traditions of each state. The court can either meet as a full court, or in chambers where only two or three judges are present. The court normally conducts its business in French, although if an action is brought before the court by or against a member state, the member state can choose the language in which the case will be heard. The court can hear actions against institutional, or actions brought either by the Commission or by a member state against another member state. The court also acts as Court of Appeal for appeals from the Court of First Instance (CFI). The court also interprets legislation and as such acts in a semi-legislative capacity.

Note: most of the mistakes in this exercise are typical of mistakes made through carelessness. Always check your written work for similar mistakes. Remember that in law, careful and specific use of words (and their forms and spellings) is very important. A wrong word or a wrong spelling could change everything!
The family 1: Relationships

   (b) the deceased’s immediate family
   (c) the state

18. Who is your next of kin?
The family 2: Children

Exercise 1:
Complete this definition and explanation (which has been adapted from the A & C Black Dictionary of Law) with words and expressions from the box.

A child can be defined as ‘a person under the age of 18’. We can also use the word ‘__________’. The state of being less than 18 years old is called ‘__________’. When a child becomes 18, he / she reaches the age of __________ and so is legally regarded as an __________. In other words, he/ she becomes __________ for his / her own actions, can sue, be sued or undertake __________ transactions.

In Great Britain a child does not have full __________ until the age of 18. A contract is not __________ on a child, and a child cannot own __________, cannot make a __________, cannot __________ and cannot drive a car (under the age of seventeen). A child cannot __________ before the age of 16, and can only do so between the ages of 16 and 18 with the __________ of his / her __________ or legal __________. A child who is less than 10 years old is not considered capable of committing a crime; a child between 10 and 14 years of age may be considered capable of doing so if there is evidence of __________ or knowledge, and so children of these ages can in certain circumstances be __________. In criminal law the term ‘child’ is used for children between the ages of 10 and 14; for children between 14 and 17, the term ‘__________’ is used; all children are termed ‘__________’. If someone between these ages commits a crime, he / she is known as a __________, and may be sentenced in a __________ Court (previously known as a __________ Court).

Exercise 2:

1. Choose the correct word in bold to complete this sentence:
The money paid by the state to a person who is responsible for a child under 16 years of age is called child __________ / __________ / __________ / __________.

2. When two people divorce or get separated and one of them has care of their children, the other has the right to see the child regularly. True or false: this is called __________.

3. True or false: in Britain, the responsibility for the assessment, review, collection and enforcement of maintenance for children is supervised by the courts.

4. What does the Latin expression ‘in loco parentis’ mean?

5. Rearrange the letters in bold to make a word: A child or young person who acts in an antisocial way or breaks the law is known as a __________.

6. Choose the best meaning of the word adoption. Is it:
   (a) the act of looking after and bringing up a child who is not your own
   (b) the act of becoming the legal parent of a child which is not your own
   (c) the act of having your children supervised while they are at home to make sure they are being well cared for
7. Which of the following are allowed to be foster parents?:
   (a) married couples  (b) unmarried couples  (c) single women  (d) single men
   (e) same-sex couples

8. Complete the words in bold: If a parent or guardian fails to provide a child with adequate shelter, food, clothing, medical attention and supervision, this is known as n________. If a parent intentionally harms a child physically or mentally, this is known as a________.

9. Choose the correct word in bold to complete this sentence:
   Sometimes, if a woman is physically unable to conceive and have a baby, the couple may ask another woman to have the baby for them and then give the baby to them: this woman is known as a surrogate / surreal / surety / surrender mother.

10. What is a Guardian ad Litem? Is it:
    (a) a parent who does not live with his / her child.
    (b) a child who does not have a parent or legal guardian.
    (c) a person appointed by a court to represent a child in a legal action.

11. True or false: a parent can be held legally responsible for the actions of their children if the children do something wrong or illegal.

12. True or false: if one parent in a couple is found guilty of the offences in number 8 above, a court can apply to have the parent taken out of the family home rather than the child.

13. Truancy is becoming a major problem in Britain. What do you think this word means?

14. In Britain there are various orders that can be applied for children in different situations. Match the order 1 – 8 with what it does (a) – (h):

    (a) If the parents cannot decide what to do about major issues related to their children, they can let a court decide for them.
    (b) In cases of separation and divorce, this decides who the child will live with (in other words, who gets custody of the child)
    (c) The court can prevent one parent from taking a child away from the other parent (often used if there is a danger the parent will take the child out of the country).
    (d) A court can order the police or other legally-appointed body to enter a house where they think a child might be held against his / her will, in bad conditions, or illegally by a person not entitled to look after the child.
    (e) A separated or divorced parent wants to see his / her children (who are living with the other parent) for short periods on a regular basis.

Article 29: Duty to preserve other people’s rights and freedoms.
Article 30: Freedom from interference in all of the above rights.

Now go to Human Rights 2 on the next page.
Human rights 2

In each of situations 1 – 29, one or more of the articles from the Universal Declaration of Human Rights has been broken or abused. Match each of the situations with the relevant article or articles (see pages 40 – 42). Choose from between Article 3 and Article 26 only.

1. Children between the age of 5 and 11 have to go to school, but their parents must pay for it.

2. A man has his house broken into and his television stolen. He goes to the police but they tell him to go away because they have more important things to do.

3. Archie White, a magistrate, has his car stolen. The police arrest and charge the man they think is responsible. The next day the man is taken to court for an initial hearing. The chairman of the justices (the head magistrate) in the courtroom is Archie White. He tells the members of the public that they have to leave the courtroom.

4. Staff employed by Kaput Computers have to start work at 7 in the morning and work until 7 in the evening, with only a half hour break for lunch. They work from Monday to Saturday, and do not get paid leave.

5. A couple wants to have a baby. The government says that the country is overpopulated and tells them that they cannot have a baby yet.

6. A new government tells all public servants that they have to become a member of their political party. Anyone who refuses will lose their job.

7. John Doe is arrested because the police think he has killed someone. Before his trial has begun, a popular newspaper publishes an article about him (complete with photographs of his arrest) with the headline ‘Vicious murderer John Doe caught!’

8. Two friends, one white and one black, have been threatened with violence. They go to the police to ask for protection. The police agree to help the white man, but not the black man.

9. A journalist writes a newspaper article explaining why he opposes his country’s foreign policy. He is told by the government that he has become persona non grata, he must leave the country immediately and never return.

10. A woman who lives in a capital city wants to visit her sick father, who lives 200 km away. She is told that she cannot leave the city to visit him.

11. A poor man murders someone and is sent to prison. A rich man commits a murder in similar circumstances but is allowed to go free.

12. A robber is sent to prison for 5 years. While he is in prison, the government confiscates all his belongings, and then destroys his house.

13. A man travels to another country where he asks to stay because he is frightened of remaining in his home country. He is immediately sent back to the country he came from.

14. The Republic of Istanata has never given women the right to vote.
15. At a party, a woman tells a group of friends that she thinks the government of her country is corrupt and incompetent. The next day she is arrested and never seen again.

16. A newspaper editor dislikes a famous popular actress, so publishes an article about her. The article describes the actress as ‘ugly, stupid, greedy and unable to act’.

17. A group of about 200 people hold a meeting in a public building to discuss their government’s policies. The police arrive and arrest them all.

18. The government intercepts, opens and reads one of their key opponent’s letters and other mail.

19. A famous political author writes a book criticising the police. She then leaves her home to go on a tour to promote her book. While she is away, the police start harassing her husband and children.

20. A husband and wife get divorced. The law in their country says that in any divorce case the man automatically gets custody of the children.

21. A woman joins a trade union. The company she works for discovers this and immediately dismisses her.

22. A man loses his job and cannot find work. His country does not offer financial support for people who are out of work.

23. A 17-year-old boy murders someone a few days before his 18th birthday. He is arrested, and six months later the case goes to court. His country has the death penalty for murder if the murderer is 18 or over. The judge sentences him to death and he is executed.

24. A policeman does not like the look of a young man sitting on a park bench, so arrests him, takes him to the police station and puts him in a police cell.

25. The police suspect that a man is a member of a terrorist organisation. They hit him, deprive him of food, water and sleep, and burn him with cigarettes until he confesses.

26. A poor man borrows money from a wealthy factory owner. He is unable to pay the money back. The factory owner takes the man’s 12-year-old son and makes him work in the factory to pay off the debt.

27. A new government closes all the churches, temples, mosques and synagogues in its country, and forbids anyone from attending services there.

28. A family want to take a holiday abroad, and apply for passports. They are told that they cannot have passports and cannot go abroad.

29. Mr Smith and Ms Jones do exactly the same job for the same company. They have the same qualifications and the same experience. Mr Smith receives £35,000 a year, and Ms Jones receives £28,000 a year.

Privacy and data protection

A lot of people and organisations, ranging from shops and credit card companies to government agencies, have personal data (= details) about us in their files and on their computers. Many people are worried that this data could be used against them or could ‘fall into the wrong hands’. In Britain, the Data Protection Act sets out rules about how this data is processed and used by data controllers (= the people who hold details about us).

The following sentences summarise the main points of the Data Protection Act. However, each sentence contains between 1 and 4 spelling mistakes or wrong words. Identify and correct each one.

Surprisingly, there are no specific privacy laws in Britain, and people who feel they have been subjected to unwanted intrusion to their privacy often turn to the European Convention of Human Rights, and specifically Article 8, which concerns the right to respect for an individual’s private life. In other cases, the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights contains a similar article (Article 12) which could be referred to. Infringements of privacy in Britain are sometimes referred to the European Court of Human Rights.

1. Data controllers should comply with the rules of good information handling practise, known as the data protection principals.

2. Personal data should be processed fairly and lawfully, should be accurate and relevant, and should be subject to appropriate security.

3. A person has the right to find out what information is held about them on computer and in some paper records. This is called the right of subject access.

4. A person has the right to find out what credit agencies report about them and to be able to correct any mistakes in these reports.

5. A person has the right to prevent data being processed if they think it is likely to cause them or anyone else unjustified substantial damaging or substantial destress.

6. A person has the right to require the data controller not to use their personal details to market them with products, services or ideals.

7. A person has the right to know if a computer is used to process information about them in order to take a decisive that will effect them, and in some cases can present decisions being made about them which are based solely on automatic processing.

8. A person has the right to have inaccurate information about them ammended or destroyed.

9. A person who has suffered damage or distress as a result of a data controller failing to comply with the Data protection Act has the right to claim condensation from the data controller.

10. A person can issue court preceedings against a data controller if a sollution to any of the above points cannot be met by dealing directly with the data controller.

Copyright exists in original written works, in works of art and works of music. It covers films, broadcasts, recordings, etc. It also covers the layout of books, newspapers and magazines. Copyright only exists if the work is created by a person who is qualified to hold a copyright, and is published in a country which is qualified to hold a copyright. Copyright lasts for 50 years after the author’s death (according to the Berne Convention) and for 25 years according to the Universal Copyright Convention. The European Union has adopted a copyright term of 70 years after the author’s death. Copyrighted material has to include the symbol ‘©’, the name of the copyright holder and the date of first publication. Do not confuse ‘copyright’ with ‘copywriter’.

28. evidence 29. fine 30. injunction

Remember that many of these words can have more than one meaning. To check the other meanings, refer to the A & C Black Dictionary of Law.

Business law 1: Key adjectives (pages 2 – 3)

Exercise 1:
1. accountable 2. ✓ 3. impartial 4. intangible 5. pecuniary 6. ✓ 7. void (if a contract is void, or null and void, it becomes legally unenforceable) 8. admissible 9. unanimous 10. eligible 11. reconcilable 12. gross (gross can also mean before tax and other deductions: for example, gross earnings, gross salary, etc) 13. ✓ 14. ✓ (note that a company or organisation becomes insolvent, a person becomes bankrupt) 15. fiduciary

Exercise 2:

Business law 2: Key nouns (pages 4 – 5)

1. nominee (from the verb to nominate. Nominee can precede words such as account and shareholder: a nominee account; a nominee shareholder). 2. franchisee: a franchisee is a person who runs a franchise, a franchiser. 3. shareholder: a shareholder is somebody who licenses a franchise. The act of selling a licence to trade as a franchise is franchising. 4. guarantor (sometimes used in the expression to stand guarantor for somebody, meaning to pay or promise to pay somebody’s debts). 5. breach (common collocations of this word include: a breach of confidence, a breach of contract, a breach of promise, a breach of the peace, a breach of trust, a breach of warranty. It is also used with in + of. We are in breach of Community law, The defendant is in breach of his statutory duty, etc) 6. acceptance (someone who accepts an offer is an acceptor) 7. perjury (also used as a reflexive verb: to perjure yourself) 8. tortfeasor (from tort, a civil wrong. A case by a claimant who alleges he or she has suffered damage or harm is called action in tort) 9. compensation (from the verb to compensate. Compensation in this context is sometimes called compensatory damages). 10. mediation (from the verb to mediate. A person who mediates is a mediator). 11. debenture (collocations of this word include: debenture register, debenture bond, debenture capital, debenture holder, debenture issue). 12. liquidation (from the verb to liquidate. Often used in the expression to go into liquidation: The company went into liquidation when it was declared insolvent). 13. damages (a person or a company can bring an action for damages against another person or company). 14. liability (you can accept, admit or refuse liability for something. A company’s articles of association should include a liability clause, which states that the liability of its members is limited. The liability of an employer for acts committed by an employee during the course of work is called vicarious liability). 15. negligence (from the verb to neglect. The adjective is negligent). 16. goodwill (for example, She paid £10,000 for the goodwill of the shop, and £4,000 for the stock). 17. freezing (noun = freezing). A person who adjudicates is a mediator. 18. liquidation (this word also means to close down a company and sell its assets). When the prosecution must prove that what it alleges is true, we can say that... the burden of proof is on the prosecution)  20. unprofessional conduct (do not confuse this with unreasonable conduct, which is behaviour by a spouse which is not reasonable and shows that a marriage has broken down)  21. confidential information  22. employment tribunal (also called an industrial tribunal)  23. obligation of confidentiality  24. trade mark (sometimes written as one word, trademark. The action of trying to sell goods by giving the impression that they have been made by someone else, using that person’s reputation and / or trade mark, is called passing off)  25. intellectual property  26. terms and conditions  27. wrongful dismissal (compare this with unfair dismissal, the act of removing someone from a job in a way that appears not to be reasonable, such as dismissing someone who wants to join a union)  28. unfair competition  29. fundamental breach  30. compulsory liquidation

Consumer rights (pages 11 – 12)

Here are the completed paragraphs:

Exercise 1:

Providers of goods and services (including credit providers and hire companies) all have responsibilities and liabilities towards the customer which are aimed at protecting the customer and his / her rights.

When you buy goods, they must be of satisfactory quality; the condition they are in should match your expectations based on the price you paid. They should also be ‘as described’ (in other words, they must match the description made by the provider and / or the manufacturer), and they must be ‘fit for purpose’ (they should do what you expect them to do).

All goods must carry a guarantee or warranty in case they go wrong or do not meet your expectations.

If you need to return goods to a shop or other supplier, you should do so within a reasonable time: many shops and suppliers specify their own limit, usually 28 days, and can refuse to do anything if there is evidence of unreasonable wear and tear (signs that the goods have been used more than is normal or for a purpose for which they were not designed).

If you take goods back to a shop, they are entitled to ask for proof of purchase, such as a receipt, a credit card slip, etc, that shows you actually bought the goods from them.

Many shops may refuse (illegally, if the product you have bought is faulty or defective) to give a refund, and instead of returning your money will offer you a credit voucher to use in that shop at a later date.

Where goods or services are ordered on the Internet, on-line shops should offer their customers a cooling-off period after they have ordered them, in case the customer decides to suddenly cancel their order.

On-line shops should give the customer an accurate description of the goods being sold, and clearly state the price, delivery arrangements and options (how and when the customer can expect to receive their goods, whether there is an extra charge for postage, etc).

On-line shops should also protect customers against credit card fraud, and should allow customers to opt out of receiving further information and unsolicited telemarketing, unsolicited mail or unsolicited email. They should also send the customer written confirmation of their order (often in the form of an email sent after the order has been placed).

Exercise 2:

If a service is being provided (for example, a mobile phone contract), and there is a specified period for the contract, this must be clearly stated by the provider.

If you buy faulty goods with a credit card, and those goods cost over £100, you have an equal claim for compensation against the seller of the goods and the credit card company.

Where a service such as the repair of a car is being provided, it should be done with reasonable care and skill (an unsatisfactory standard of work or general poor workmanship should not be accepted by the customer) for a reasonable charge (the customer should not have to pay an excessive amount of money) and within a reasonable time.

If you need to make a claim against a shop, company or other provider, because you have not received satisfaction from that shop, company, etc, you can do so through the County Court. For claims of less than £5,000, the Small Claims procedure should be useful.

The process is very simple: after completing a claim form, you ask the court to issue the proceedings. The court then serves the claim on the company or other provider. Assuming the company responds within the specified time limit, there will be a preliminary hearing. Later, there will be a main hearing where hopefully the judge will decide in your favour.

Contracts 1 (pages 13 – 14)

Exercise 1. Here is the complete text:

A contract can be defined as ‘an agreement between two or more parties to create legal obligations between them’. Some contracts are made ‘under seal’: in other words, they are signed and sealed (stamped) by the parties involved. Most contracts are made verbally or in writing. The essential elements of a contract are: (a) that an offer made by one party should be accepted by the other; (b) consideration (the price in money, goods or some other reward, paid by one party in exchange for another party agreeing to do something); (c) the intention to create legal relations. The terms of a contract may be express (clearly stated) or implied (not clearly stated in the contract, but generally understood). A breach of contract by one party of their contractual liability entitles the other party to sue for damages or, in some cases, to seek specific performance. In such circumstances, the contract may be voided (in other words, it becomes invalid).

Exercise 2:
1. an unspoken implied or understood contract between a shop and a customer (yes, it is a contract!)  2. a verbal contract that has gone through the offer, acceptance and consideration stages. 3. a tenancy (agreement) (pcm = per calendar month) 4. franchise agreement (between a franchisor – the people who license a franchisee – and a franchisee – the people who run the franchise) 5. loan agreement (APR = annual percentage rate; the interest that has to be paid) 6. employment contract (full-time) 7. terms and conditions of sale (purchase agreement) 8. car hire agreement

Contracts 2 (pages 15 – 16)

1. part = parties 2. False. A contract which is binding must be followed exactly, unless both parties agree on a novation (= a transaction in which a new contract is agreed) 3. obey and honour 4. period of notification = period of notice 5. No, it is part of a fixed-term (in his case, 18 months) contract 4. True (in other words, if either party cancels the contract early, they will still have to honour the terms of the contract for 3 months, unless there was less than 3 months to run on the contract) 6. anointment = appointment 2. False (they amalgamated, or joined with, Berryhill Books) 3. False (he cannot buy more than 50% of the company’s shares – a controlling interest – otherwise he will be able to decide how the company is run) 4. None (he can have no professional dealings with third parties, i.e. companies other than AKL Publishing)

Corporate responsibility 1: The environment (page 17)

A company should ensure that its actions do not damage local and global ecosystems. It needs to reduce its use of natural resources such as oil, gas and other fossil fuels, and regulate its effect on aspects such as climate change, air, sea and noise pollution. It needs to be aware of the dangers it might pose in terms of ecological degradation, and must follow local, national and international codes, rules, regulations and protocols designed to minimise damage. Where possible, it should exploit the availability of alternative power sources such as solar and tidal power. If the company is involved in the agricultural sector, it should support and encourage sustainable agriculture and forest use. If a company wishes to develop genetically modified products, it should do so only if it is safe, and only after public consultation, and it should take all necessary precautions. It should also have the approval of local people who might be affected. If accidents occur or regulatory breaches are made, the company must be honest and transparent in its dealings with those who are affected, and assist them in implementing procedures to reduce its impact.

A company that extracts and exploits natural non-renewable resources such as coal, oil or gas, or renewable resources such as hydro-electric power, should ensure that it avoids conflict with local people, and that the human rights of those people are not abused through its actions, either directly or indirectly. It needs to be aware of its role in sustaining the environment, and helping to preserve the survival of local and national communities (including indigenous people who might be less able to represent or defend themselves). A company should avoid working in or around vulnerable and non-sustainable communities unless its actions directly benefit those communities. Where people are asked to move in order for a company to exploit local resources, they should do so voluntarily, and should be offered adequate compensation for their land and assets (the resource being exploited should be considered as one of these).

A company should respect, protect and promote national and international human rights treaties, principles and standards, regardless of whether or not these have been ratified by the host state, and regardless of whether or not such standards are legally-binding in the host state. All companies should regulate their behaviour accordingly. A company should respect the political jurisdiction of the host state, but where there are gross human rights violations by the government of the host state, the company should withdraw its operations from that state.

A company should comply with internationally-recognised labour, health, safety and environmental standards. It should be committed to ensuring that the communities it deals with and the people it employs are treated with respect. It should recognise that its operations will have a social, economic and environmental impact on local communities, and it should involve the community in any major decision-making process. It should contribute to the development of that community, the preservation of local cultures, the development of social, educational and medical facilities and the sustainability of the local economy. It should at all times incorporate the best interests of the community into its methods of operation, and actively encourage the participation of the community in its operations.

If a company produces essential food or medical items to sell locally, it should implement a policy of price restraint so that these products are affordable. It should not charge grossly inflated prices. If the essential products it makes carry a patent the company should not enforce this if doing so will have an adverse effect on the health and wellbeing of local people.

A company should not discriminate against, or denigrate, local communities or individuals on the basis of race, gender, culture, ethnicity, religion, class, sexual orientation or disability.

A company should display integrity and transparency in all its operations at all times.

Corporate responsibility 3: Employment (pages 19 – 20)

Corporate responsibility 4: Financial and ethical integrity (pages 21 – 22)

Paragraph 2: social = socially, investing = investments, diligent = diligence, adversity = adverse, affect = effect, right =
Suicide, or death by suicide, is not a crime, although it is attempted suicide that can be a crime. Offences against justice include conspiracy; contempt of court; perjury; perverting the course of justice; property crime; political offences; and self-inflicted injuries and suicides. Note that the word 'suicide' is used to describe both the act of taking one's own life and the attempt to do so, whereas the word 'attempted suicide' is used to describe the act of attempting to take one's own life.

Political offences can refer to one or more specific acts ('public order offences', 'crimes against the person', 'crimes against property'), or it can refer to illegal acts in general ('criminals are a danger to society'). There has been a 50% rise in violent crime and short interest rates.

Court orders and injunctions (page 23)

Note that many of the explanations of the orders and injunctions in this exercise define only one or two of their main features. For reference see Dictionary of Law 4th edition (A & C Black 0-7475-6636-4).

Crime 1: Categories (page 25)

Crimes against the person: abduction; actual bodily harm; assault; battery; grievous bodily harm; indecent assault; infanticide; manslaughter; murder; paedophilia (also called unlawful sex); racial abuse; rape; wounding. Note that some crimes against the person, such as murder and paedophilia, are also considered to be crimes against society.

Crimes against property: arson; being equipped to steal; blackmail; breaking and entering; burglary (if the burglar is armed, this is called aggravated burglary); criminal damage; deception or fraud; embezzlement; forgery; handling stolen goods; money laundering; piracy (specifically intellectual property). Note that piracy can also refer to the attacking of ships at sea in order to commit a robbery; possessing something with intent to damage or destroy property; robbery (if the robber is armed, this is called armed robbery); theft.

Public order offences: committing a breach of the peace; drug dealing (the moving of drugs from one country to another is called drug trafficking); misuse of drugs; obscenity; obstruction of the police; possessing weapons; unlawful assembly.

Road traffic offences: careless or reckless driving; driving without a licence or insurance; drunk in charge.

Sexual offences: bigamy; indecency; paedophilia; rape.

Offences against Parliament: espionage; sedition; terrorism; treason.

Offences against justice: aiding and abetting an offender; bribery (especially if the person being bribed is a Member of Parliament); perjury; perverting the course of justice.

Suicide, or attempted suicide, is not a crime, although it is a crime to help someone kill themselves, even in cases of euthanasia (mercy killings).

Note that the word crime can refer to one or more specific act ('There has been a 50% rise in crimes of violence') or it can refer to illegal acts in general ('There has been a 50% rise in violent crime').

Crime 2: Name the offence (pages 26 – 27)

1. arson
2. murder (or attempted murder, if the victim survived)
3. careless or reckless driving (specifically, speeding)
4. breaking and entering / burglary / theft (not robbery, as the crime took place in a private residence)
5. bribery
6. obscenity
7. aiding and abetting an offender
8. terrorism / wounding
9. (video) piracy
10. espionage (if the country is at war, the minister might also be accused of treason)
11. sedition (he might also be committing a breach of the peace, an unlawful assembly, and his address to the crowd might result in vandalism and hooliganism)
12. forgery (the bank note the customer is trying to use has been forged)
13. manslaughter (specifically corporate manslaughter)
14. deception or fraud (the man who went to the woman's house pretended to be someone he wasn't; he deceived her)
15. abduction (we can also say kidnapping)
16. criminal damage
17. blackmail
18. perjury (the defendant is pretending to be someone he isn't)
19. breach of the peace
20. breach of the Official Secrets Act (= an Act of the British Parliament which governs the publication of secret information relating to the state)
21. (public) indecency (specifically indecent exposure)
22. perverting the course of justice
23. money laundering
24. forgery

Crime 3: Criminal procedure 1 (page 28)

Here are the sentences with the correctly-rearranged words and expressions:

1. Once the crime has been committed, it is reported to the police by the victim.
2. The police arrive at the scene of the crime to investigate what has happened.
3. They look for important clues and other evidence (for example, fingerprints or a genetic profile) that will help them to identify the culprit.
4. In some cases, they will also try to establish if the modus operandi (a Latin expression which describes the way in which the crime was carried out) matches other crimes in the area.
5. If they have a suspect who doesn’t have a good alibi, they will then apprehend him.
6. When he is arrested, the police will caution him (in other words, they warn him that anything he says might be used later in court).
7. He is then taken to the police station, where he is interviewed by the investigating officers.
8. He is allowed to have a solicitor present if he wants.
9. If he wants legal representation at this stage, but cannot afford it, the police must provide it.
10. If, at the end of the interview, the police believe that they have the right man, they charge him with the crime.
11. A statement is prepared, which is signed by all parties present.
12. The accused is then either released on bail (in other words, he is allowed to leave the police station and go home in exchange for a financial ‘deposit’, on condition that he promises to appear in court when required: if he doesn’t appear in court, he will lose this deposit and a warrant will be issued for his arrest), or he is remanded in custody  and locked in a cell to prevent him from running away.
13. More questioning will probably follow: the police need as much proof as possible (anything that is admissible in court will help them to get a conviction), and they may also be interested in any accomplices who may have helped his man.
14. The police will also want to talk to any witnesses who were present when the crime took place.
15. The next day, the man appears before a magistrate in a magistrates’ court. If the police present their case properly and have followed all the correct procedures and protocols, he will then be committed for trial at a Crown Court.

* We can also use interrogated or questioned. In Britain, the euphemistic expression ‘helping the police with their enquiries’ is also used.

 We can also say detained.

Dispute resolution (page 31)

1. alternative 2. litigation (the verb is to litigate, the adjective is litigious) 3. voluntary / consent 4. impartial / mediator (the verb is to mediate) 5. facilitator 6. joint session / caucus 7. confidential / disclosed 8. resolutions / practical / beneficial 9. negotiations 10. settlements / compromise / mutual 11. bound 12. prejudice 13. binding / honour / contractually 14. arbitration 15. tribunal 16. arbitrator 17. adjudication 18. public domain

European courts, institutions and conventions (pages 34 – 35)

Here are the texts with the wrong words highlighted and corrected.

The European Union (EU)

This is a group of European nations that form a single economic community and have agreed on social and political cooperation. There are currently 25 member states. The Union has a Parliament and a main executive body called the European Commission (which is made up of members nominated by each member state).

The Council of Europe

This is one of the four bodies which form the basis of the European Union. The Council does not have fixed members, but the member states are each represented by the relevant government minister. The Council is headed by a President, and the Presidency rotates among the member states in alphabetical order, each serving a six-month period. This means that in effect each member can control the agenda of the Council, and therefore that of the European Union during their six-month period, and can try to get as many of its proposals put into legislation as it can.

The European Convention on Human Rights

This is a convention signed by all members of the Council of Europe covering the rights and fundamental freedoms of all its citizens, and aims to prevent violations and breaches of human rights. The convention recognise property rights, the right of citizens to privacy, the due process of law and the principle of legal review or appeal. The key provisions are now incorporated by the Human Rights Act of 1998, which came into force in the United Kingdom in October 2000.

The European Court of Human Rights

This is a court that considers the rights of citizens of states which are parties to the European Convention for the protection of human rights, and has jurisdiction over cases that cannot be settled by the European Commission of...
Human Rights (see below). It protects many basic rights, including the right to life, freedom from fear, freedom from torture, freedom of speech, freedom of religious worship, freedom of assembly and association, etc (in fact, most of the articles in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, on which the European Convention is based: see the section on Human Rights on pages 44 – 48). Its formal name is the European Court for the Protection of Human Rights.

The European Commission of Human Rights
This is a body which investigates any breaches and abuses of the European Convention on Human Rights. It attempts to end grievances, especially if they contravene the articles detailed in the European Convention, and to help aggrieved parties reach a settlement without recourse to the European Court of Human Rights (see above).

The European Court of Justice (the ECJ)
This is a court set up to see that the principles of law as laid out in the Treaty of Rome are observed and applied correctly in the European Union, and has jurisdiction over issues of European Law. Its full name is the Court of Justice of the European Communities. The Court is responsible for settling disputes relating to European Union law, and also acting as a last Court of Appeal against judgements in individual member states.

Court judges in the ECJ are appointed by the governments of the member states for a period of six years. These judges come from all the member states, and bring with them the legal traditions of each state. The court can either meet as a full court, or in chambers where only two or three judges are present. The court normally conducts its business in French, although if an action is brought before the court by or against a member state, the member state can choose the language in which the case will be heard. The court can hear actions against institutions, or actions brought either by the Commission or by a member state against another member state. The court also acts as Court of Appeal for appeals from the Court of First Instance (CFI). The court also interprets legislation and as such acts in a semi-legislative capacity.

The family 1: Relationships (pages 36 – 37)
1. (c) 2. spouse 3. False. Generally a partner is someone you live with (and with whom you have a sexual relationship), although some people do refer to their spouse as their partner 4. No. Same-sex partners can get married in some countries, but will not be legally recognised as being married in Britain. However, from December 2005 Britain introduced Civil Partnerships, which give same-sex couples many of the same rights and responsibilities as married couples. 5. A separation (from the verb to separate) is the state of two married people no longer living with each other. A divorce is the legal termination of a marriage (divorce can also be a verb: to divorce). 6. annulled (the noun is annulment, the adjective is annulable) 7. bigamy 8. Usually (d) (if divorce proceedings are defended, they may be transferred to the High Court, but this is unusual: most divorce cases are now conducted by what is called the ‘special procedure’, which means that couples do not need to go through a full trial. In London, divorce proceedings are dealt with by a special court called the Divorce Registry) 9. (3) adultery, (4) unreasonable behaviour (for example, emotional cruelty, domestic violence, etc), (5) desertion (most divorces are granted on conditions (3) and (4))

10. Here is the complete text:
A request (the petition) is made by the Petitioner ( = the person applying for the divorce) to the court for a divorce, in which the facts about the people involved and the reasons for the divorce are explained. The court sends the divorce petition to the Respondent ( = the other spouse), together with a form called an Acknowledgement of Service form, which he / she completes. In it, he / she indicates whether or not he / she wishes to dispute the divorce. He / She returns this to the court within 7 days. (If he / she wants to dispute the divorce and / or its terms, he / she is sent another form to complete).

Assuming that the Respondent does not want to dispute the divorce or the terms, a copy of the Acknowledgement of Service form is sent to the Petitioner, who confirms the facts sent in their original petition by swearing an affidavit. The court pronounces the decree nisi, an order ending the marriage subject to a full decree absolute, which comes later and ends the marriage completely.

11. support or maintenance 12. Probably yes. The marital status of the couple at the time the children were born does not affect this 13. Child Support Agency 14. Money is automatically removed from that partner’s wages or salary before he / she receives it 15. (c) 16. (a) (it can also occasionally be applied to a wife who is ordered to support her divorced husband. If the couple were not married, one of them may be ordered to pay the other alimony) 17. (b), assuming they are not related (this does not apply if they have bought a house or property together and are considered beneficial joint tenants) 18. The person or persons most closely related to you. If you are married, for example, your next of kin is usually your husband or wife.

The family 2: Children (pages 38 – 39)

Here is the completed text:

A child can be defined as ‘a person under the age of 18’. We can also use the word ‘minor’. The state of being less than 18 years old is called ‘minority’. When a child becomes 18, he / she reaches the age of majority and so is legally regarded as an adult. In other words, he/ she becomes responsible for his / her own actions, can sue, be sued or undertake business transactions.

In Great Britain a child does not have full legal status until the age of 18. A contract is not binding on a child, and a child cannot own land, cannot make a will, cannot vote and cannot drive a car (under the age of seventeen). A child cannot marry before the age of 16, and can only do so between the ages of 16 and 18 with the written permission of his / her parents or legal guardians. A child who is less than 10 years old is not considered capable of committing a crime; a child between 10 and 14 years of age may be considered capable of doing so if there is evidence of malice or knowledge, and so children of these ages can in certain circumstances be convicted. In criminal law the term ‘child’ is used for children between the ages of 10 and 14; for children between 14 and 17, the term ‘young person’ is used; all children are termed juveniles. If someone between these ages commits a crime, he / she is known as a young offender, and may be sentenced in a Youth Court (previously known as a Juvenile Court).

Exercise 2:
1. benefit = Support (money paid regularly by one parent to the other parent, who is looking after a child / children. Maintenance is payment made by a divorced or separated husband or wife to the former spouse, to help pay for living expenses and also for the cost of bringing up the children. A pension is money a person receives when they retire) 2. False: it is called access 3. False: this is now done by the Child Support Agency (CSA), an agency of the Department for Work and Pensions: See The Family 1: Relationships on page 40) 4. Acting in the place of a parent, with parental responsibilities (for example, while a child is at school, his / her teacher is in loco parentis) 5. delinquent (sometimes called a juvenile delinquent. The act of causing delinquent acts is called delinquency) 6. (b) (a) is called fostering. (c) is called supervision (usually as a result of a supervision order) 7. In theory, any of them, although married couples are generally preferred. 8. neglect / abuse 9. surrogate (if a man is unable to father a child, the couple may use a surrogate father. In both circumstances, the child is usually conceived through artificial insemination) 10. (c) 11. True: they can be liable for negligence and damages if they have given their children something 'dangerous' and which the children have failed to use reasonably. The same applies if the parents have not exercised sufficient parental control for a child of any particular age 12. True: 13. This is when children deliberately stay away from school without their parents' or teachers' permission (a child who does this is called a truant. The verb is to play truant (to play hooky) in the USA). Truancy is such a big problem in some cities that police have a special truancy squad to deal with it. Parents can be fined or sent to prison if their children play truant persistently) 14. 1 (h), 2 (l), 3 (d), 4 (g), 5 (c), 6 (a), 7 (e), 8 (b)

Human Rights 1 (pages 40 – 42)

Exercise 1:

Exercise 2:
Article 11: innocent = innocent, trail = trial, defense = defence, comitted = committed, penalty = penalty
Article 12: arbitrary = arbitrary, privacy = privacy, reputation = reputation, projection = protection
Article 13: residents = residence, boarders = borders, estate = state
Article 14: asylum = asylum, persecuion = persecution (not prosecution), inboked = invoked, prossecutions = prosecutions, principals = principles
Article 15: depraved = deprived, denied = denied
Article 16: limitation = limitation, religious = religion, dissolution = dissolution, consent = consent, fundamental = fundamental Article 17: association = association, arbitrarily = arbitrarily
Article 18: conscience = conscience, believe = belief, practise = practice (in British English practise is a verb, and we need a noun here), warship = worship
Article 19: interference = interference, frontiers = frontiers
Article 20: assembly = assembly, cambeled = compelled

Exercise 3:
Suggested answers (these are simplified versions of Articles 21 – 30):
Article 21: Everyone has the right to take part in their country's political affairs either by belonging to the government themselves or by choosing politicians who have the same ideas as them. Elections should take place regularly and voting should be in secret. Every adult should have the right to vote and all votes should be equal.
Article 22: The society in which you live should help you to develop and to make the most of all the advantages (culture, work, social welfare) which are offered to you.
Article 23: Every adult has the right to a job, and to receive a salary that can support him / her and his / her family. Men and women should get paid the same amount of money for doing the same job. Anyone can join a trade union.
Article 24: Everyone should have the right to rest from work and to take regular paid holidays.
Article 25: Everyone has the right to a good life, with enough food, clothing, housing and healthcare. You should be helped if you are out of work, if you are ill, if you are old or if your husband or wife is dead. Women who are going to have a baby should receive special help. All children should have the same rights, whether their mother is married or unmarried.
Article 26: Everyone has the right to go to school, and should go to school. Primary schooling should be free. Everyone should be able to learn a profession or continue their studies as far as possible. Everyone should be taught to get on with others from different races and backgrounds. Parents should have the right to choose how and what their children learn.
Article 27: Everyone should have the right to share in their community's arts and sciences. Works by artists, writers or scientists should be protected, and everyone should benefit from them.
Article 28: So that your rights are respected, there should be an 'order' to protect them. This 'order' should be both local and worldwide.
Article 29: Everyone should have duties towards their community and to other people. Human rights should be observed and protected by everyone in a spirit of mutual respect.
Article 30: Nobody should take away these rights and freedoms from us.

In Europe, there is also the European Convention of Human Rights. This is a convention signed by all members of the Council of Europe covering the rights of all its citizens. The key provisions are now covered by the Human Rights Act of 1998 (which came into force in the United Kingdom in 2000, although it does not form part of English law). The Convention recognises property rights, religious rights, the right of citizens to privacy, the due process of law and the principle of legal review.

Human rights 2 (pages 43 – 44)

Note that some of these are open to debate and interpretation, and you may not agree with all of them. Some other circumstances may also be involved in each situation which are not mentioned. For the complete and original Universal Declaration of Human Rights, visit www.unhchr.ch/udhr.

The expression without notice is now usually used instead)    10. ex post facto    11. pari passu (for example, The new shares will rank pari passu with the existing ones)    12. mala in se    13. in terrorem    14. habeas corpus    15. de facto (for example, He is the de facto owner of the property)    16. pro tempore (for example, We are prepared to issue a pro tempore injunction until the case is dealt with fully in the court)    17. in personam (for example, an action in personam)    18. ipso facto (for example, He was found in the vehicle at the time of the accident and ipso facto was deemed to be in charge of it)    19. in loco parentis (for example, The court is acting in loco parentis)    20. res judicata    21. per curiam    22. doli capax    23. onus probandi (we can also say burden of proof)    24. uberrimae fidei (for example, an insurance contract is uberrimae fidei)    25. consensus ad idem    26. de jure (for example, He is the de jure owner of the property)    27. ad litem    28. non compos mentis (this can be a mitigating circumstance if a crime is committed)    29. bona vacantia (for example, in the case of a person without living relatives, dying without making a will: his / her property usually passes to the state)    30. mens rea (Generally, in order to be convicted of a crime, the accused must be shown to have committed an unlawful act (actus reus) with a criminal state of mind (mens rea))    31. quid pro quo    32. ab initio    33. in rem    34. actus reus    35. doli incapax (for example, children under the age of 10 are doli incapax and cannot be prosecuted for criminal offences; children between 10 and 14 are presumed to be doli incapax but the presumption can be reversed if there is evidence of knowledge or malice)    36. corpus delicti    37. mala prohibita (for example, walking on the grass where this is not allowed) Compare mala prohibita with mala in se    38. bona fide (for example: The respondent was not acting bona fide; She made me a bona fide offer)    39. ultra vires (for example, Children under the age of 10 are mala prohibita; or if a ban from driving would cause the driver exceptional hardship – for example, the loss of his / her job)

Legal referencing (page 46)

On the road (page 47)

1. reckless (for example, tailgating, speeding, etc. A driver who causes death through reckless or dangerous driving is guilty of a notifiable offence and may be charged with manslaughter or culpable homicide)    2. contravention (for example, a driver may be charged with a contravention of speed limits, a contravention of parking regulations, etc. The word contravention can be applied to any situation where a rule or regulation is broken)    3. speeding (we also say exceeding the speed limit)    4. joy riding (sometimes written as one word, joyriding. If someone breaks into a vehicle to steal it, this may be referred to as aggravated theft)    5. third party (third party insurance pays compensation if someone who is not the insured party incurs loss or injury. If the insured person is also covered, this is called comprehensive insurance. In Britain, driving without third party insurance is an offence which can carry a fine of up to £5,000, and a possible ban from driving. The adjective is uninsured)    6. disqualified (if a driver in Britain commits a motoring offence, he / she receives points on his / her driving licence. If 12 or more points are accumulated over a three-year period, the driver is disqualified. Some offences carry more points than others)    7. fixed penalty (a set of fines and penalties established in advance, usually for minor motoring offences)    8. comply (for example, drivers should comply with traffic lights and signs, they should comply with the direction of a traffic warden, they should comply with pedestrian crossing regulations, etc)    9. defective    10. drink driving (in Britain, this automatically carries a ban from driving of at least one year, unless the driver has mitigating circumstances, or if a ban from driving would cause the driver exceptional hardship – for example, the loss of his / her job)    11. seatbelt (this rule includes front- and back-seat passengers)

Other driving offences in Britain include: driving while disqualified; driving without road tax; using a hand-held mobile phone while driving, failing to stop after an accident; failing to report an accident within 24 hours; driving with too many people in a vehicle, or with an otherwise overloaded vehicle; failing to supply police with an alcohol, blood or urine specimen when asked; driving while unfit through drugs; driving while failing to notify a disability; leaving a vehicle in a dangerous place, etc. There are, in fact, at least 60 offences you may commit by driving a motorised vehicle in Britain!

The word in the shaded vertical strip is endorsement (from the verb to endorse, definition 3 in the A & C Black Dictionary of Law)

Answers (cont.)

People in the law 2 (page 50)

Here are the completed texts:

Barristers: In England and Wales, a barrister is a member of one of the Inns of Court (= the four law societies in London to which lawyers are members); he or she has passed examinations and spent one year in pupillage (= training) before being called to the bar (= being fully accepted to practise law). Barristers have the right of audience in all courts in England and Wales: in other words, they have the right to speak, but they do not have that right exclusively.

Magistrates: Magistrates usually work in Magistrates’ Courts. These courts hear cases of petty crime, adoption, affiliation, maintenance and violence in the home. The court can commit someone for trial or for sentence in a Crown Court. There are two main types of magistrates: stipendiary magistrates (qualified lawyers who usually sit alone); lay magistrates (unqualified, who sit as a bench of three and can only sit if there is a justices’ clerk present to advise them).

Judges: In England, judges are appointed by the Lord Chancellor*. The minimum requirement is that one should be a barrister or solicitor of ten years’ standing. The majority of judges are barristers, but they cannot practise as barristers. Recorders are practising barristers who act as judges on a part-time basis. The appointment of judges is not a political appointment, and judges remain in office unless they are found guilty of gross misconduct. Judges cannot be Members of Parliament. **

The jury: Juries are used in criminal cases, and in some civil actions, notably actions for libel. They are also used in some coroner’s inquests. The role of the jury is to use common sense to decide if the verdict should be for or against the accused. Members of a jury (called jurors) normally have no knowledge of the law and follow the explanations given to them by the judge. Anyone whose name appears on the electoral register and who is between the ages of 18 and 70 is eligible for jury service. Judges, magistrates, barristers and solicitors are not eligible for jury service, nor are priests, people who are on bail, and people suffering from mental illness. People who are excused jury service include members of the armed forces, Members of Parliament and doctors. Potential jurors can be challenged if one of the parties to the case thinks they are or may be biased.

* The Lord Chancellor is the member of the British government and of the cabinet who is responsible for the administration of justice and the appointment of judges in England and Wales. At the time this book was published, the role of Lord Chancellor was to be abolished and his/her role assumed by the Secretary of State for Constitutional affairs.

 Note that in the USA, state judges can be appointed by the state governor or can be elected; in the federal courts and the Supreme Court, judges are appointed by the President, but the appointment has to be approved by Congress.

Property (pages 52 – 53)

Exercise 1:

1. freehold 2. leasehold is property which is held for a fixed period of time on the basis of a lease, but freehold is property held for an unlimited time 3. True 4. tenant 5. a realtor 6. False: it is conveyancing 7. The title deeds show who owns the property: you will need them if there are any disputes over who owns it, or when you need to sell the house. If you buy a house with a mortgage, the mortgage lender holds the title deeds until you have repaid the money you owe 8. Probably a fixed-rate mortgage, as the interest you pay on the mortgage will not increase with the national rate (for a fixed period of time, at least) 9. foreclosure 10. (c) Joint tenancy means that the people who bought the house jointly own the entire property. Compare this with tenants-in-common, where each person owns a share in the property depending on how much each spent on it 11. (c) 12. She would be very unhappy: somebody else has offered a higher price for the house and the seller has accepted that offer 13. encumbrance 14. stamp duty

Exercise 2: Here is the completed text:

1. You make an offer on the asking price (the price that the seller is asking for the house), which is accepted by the seller.
2. You appoint a solicitor to help you make your purchase.
3. You solicitor receives confirmation of your accepted offer, and also any necessary details from the estate agent.
4. The seller’s solicitor sends your solicitor a draft contract. This is checked to make sure there are no unusual clauses.
5. At the same time, the seller’s solicitor sends your solicitor the seller’s title deed. This is carefully checked for any restrictions that might apply to ownership of the property. At the same time, the seller should make your solicitor aware of any problems with the property (for example, disputes with his / her neighbours, any approved or unapproved alterations that he / she has made to the property, relevant information on boundaries adjoining other properties and public land, covenants or preservation orders that may restrict development of the property, whether you will need to get planning permission before making changes to the property, etc).
6. If the contract is approved, copies of it are prepared for signing by both you and the seller.
7. Before you do this, however, your solicitor should ask the local authority (for example, the local town council) to disclose any information it has on plans for the area around the property you are buying (for example, there may be plans to build an airport at the end of your back garden, or a motorway across your lawn at the front).
8. At the same time, you should ask for a survey of the property by a chartered surveyor. He / she will tell you if there are any problems with the property (for example, rising damp, dry rot, unsound structural features, etc).
9. If you are happy with everything, you now sign the contract: you are now legally bound to buy the property (you cannot pull out of the agreement, unless further checks by your solicitor produce unfavourable information that has been kept secret from you; for example, he / she may discover that the property details the seller has provided are not accurate).
10. The solicitor arranges a completion date with the seller’s solicitor – this is the date when you will take official possession of the property – and both you and the seller exchange contracts through your solicitors. Your title deeds are prepared.

11. You pay your solicitor his fees, the money for the property (assuming you have already paid a deposit on the property, you will now need to pay the outstanding balance), the relevant stamp duty and Land Registry fees.

12. You get your copy of the deeds and the key to the front door. Congratulations, and welcome to your new home!

Punishments and penalties (pages 54 – 55)

1. punishable (for example, a punishable act, or a crime punishable with imprisonment) (Note: not punishing, which describes something that is exhausting and makes you tired) / penalise and penal (a penal code is a set of laws governing crime and its punishment. A penal institution is a place such as a prison where convicted criminals are kept)

2. punitive (= something that is intended to punish. We can also say exemplary damages. Punitive can also come before other words such as action, measures, sanctions, restrictions, taxes, tariffs, etc)

3. pronounced sentence (we can also say passed sentence. Sentence can be a noun or a verb) / 4. a deterrent (for example, a long prison sentence will act as a deterrent to other possible criminals)

5. Corporal punishment: he / she is physically beaten with a stick or a whip. Capital punishment: he / she is judicially killed / executed (he / she has committed a capital crime and receives the death penalty or a death sentence)*

6. He may be given a caution or a warning by the police to slow down. Alternatively he might be fined (police often issue on-the-spot fines, which you have to pay immediately) / or be given points on his licence (if you receive too many points within a certain time period, your licence will be temporarily withdrawn). 7. He will almost certainly be banned / disqualified from driving for at least a year, and will probably be fined. If he causes an accident as a result of being drunk in charge of a vehicle, he might also be sent to prison. 8. convicted / acquitted

9. A custodial sentence involves sending someone to prison. A suspended sentence is a sentence of imprisonment which a court orders shall not take effect unless the offender commits another crime. Probation is often a feature of a suspended sentence: the individual (the probationer) must behave in a certain way, under the supervision of a probation officer.

10. He is not allowed to go in that bar again, and might also be banned from other bars / public places in the area.

11. In Britain, an ASBO (pronounced as one word) is an Antisocial Behaviour Order. This is an order which is applied for by the police against any individual over the age of 10 years old who is causing someone distress, harm or harassment, in order to restrict their behaviour. If an ASBO is breached, the individual can expect to be punished. An ABC is an Acceptable Behaviour Contract. This is a formal written agreement which an individual signs to say he / she will not act in an antisocial manner in the future.

12. A young person (in Britain, normally someone under the age of 18) who has committed a crime (a remand centre is a special prison for young people who have been remanded in custody)

13. Life imprisonment (for crimes such as murder. Note that life imprisonment does not necessarily mean the offender spends his / her entire life in prison: in the United Kingdom, life imprisonment for murder lasts on average 10 years)

14. imprisonment (= to send someone to prison) / 15. True. 16. Six months: concurrent sentences take place at the same time as each other.

17. good behaviour / 18. False. He / she is sentenced to do unpaid work in the local community (the abbreviation is CSO). 19. They will have to pay money to the other company: a bond is a document in which a company or individual promises to pay money if something happens (for example, if they breach a contract)

20. injunction (for example, The Beckhams’ lawyer applied for an injunction to stop the publisher from printing the book)

21. compensation (the defendant would be ordered to pay compensatory damages to the injured party). 22. He would be unhappy: his assets (= his money and other belongings) have been frozen, which means that he cannot take them out of the country (also called a freezing injunction, and known until 1999 as a Mareva injunction).

* Corporal punishment was abolished in England, Scotland and Wales in 1948, and in Northern Ireland in 1968. Capital punishment for murder was abolished in the United Kingdom in 1965.

Types of court (pages 56 – 57)

Exercise 1:
1. small claims court 2. Court of Appeal (also called an Appeal Court) 3. court-martial (Note that the plural form is courts-martial. It can also be a verb, usually used in the passive: to be court-martialled)

4. courthouse 5. County Court (there are about 270 County Courts in England and Wales. They are presided over by either district judges or circuit judges. These courts mainly deal with family matters, bankruptcies and claims concerning land)

6. European Court of Human Rights (its formal name is the European Court for the Protection of Human Rights)

7. employment tribunal (formally known as an industrial tribunal). The panel hearing each case consists of a legally qualified chairperson and two independent lay (= not legally qualified) people who have experience of employment issues. Decisions need to be enforced by a separate application to the court. Appeals are made to an Employment Appeal Tribunal)

8. magistrate’s court 9. coroner’s court (an investigation in a coroner’s court is called a coroner’s inquest. A coroner’s inquest also decides what happens when treasure or something valuable that has been secretly hidden or lost is suddenly rediscovered)

10. Crown Court 11. Lands Tribunal 12. Commercial Court 13. rent tribunal 14. High Court 15. European Court of Justice (ECJ for short. It is also called the Court of Justice of the European Communities)

Exercise 2:
1. Admiralty Court (HMS = Her / His Majesty’s Ship, an abbreviation that precedes the names of ships of the Royal Navy) 2. (in the first instance) County Court 3. coroner’s court 4. Commercial Court 5. employment tribunal 6. Court of Protection 7. small claims court (if the amount was for less than £5,000) 8. rent tribunal 9. (probably) the High Court

10. court-martial
